IT WILL BE THE BEST.

Uncle Sam's Navy Not to be Knocked Out by Any One When He Gets It.

WHITNEY'S MADE A GOOD START.

His Administration Praised Highly by Republican Senators.

MR. SMALLS SPEAKS FOR HIMSELP

Be Thinks His Votes and Not His Record Elected Him to Congress.

Secretary Whitney's administration of the affairs of the Navy Department was highly complimented by several Republican Senators yesterday. They seem to think the United States will have the best navy in the world. Mr. Smalls spoke for himself in his contest for Elliott's seat. Figures show $20,000,000 difference between the revenue which would be raised by the Mills bill and that of the Republican Senators.

WASHINGTON, February 12. - The Senate to-day resumed consideration of the naval appropriation bill-the pending question being Mr. Chandler's amendment to strike out the words requiring the new cruising monitor to be constructed of the type, and under the plans and specifications of Mr. Thomas, of Illinois. Mr. Chandler continued his argument in support of the amendment-expressing his doubts whether Mr. Thomas had done anything whatever in the making of plans and specifications, or whether Mr. Thomas had the skill and ability to do so. His understanding was, that Mr. Thomas had merely enumerated certain ideas as a desideratum on a ship, that naval officers now in the employment signs, plans and specifications. He thought it altogether wrong to put such a provision in an appropriation bill, but if anybody was to be recognized in that manner, it should be the men who had taken the ideas and designed the ship.

PRAISE FROM SIR LAUNCELOT. Finally the clause was somewhat recon structed, and Mr. Plumb complimented the present administration of the Navy Department. He was glad to say (in the closing days of the administration) that the Navy Department had been well administered, not only in the sense that there had been a stimulus given (so far as could be given by executive direction) to everything that went to the up-building of the navy, to procuring the best types of ships, to the stimulation of the highest forms of manufactures, but, more than all that, to the encouragement of the individual genius of the people, and to the doing of work, not in navy yards (where collitical considerations might have influence), but in private vards. He was glad Navy Department had been administered in a practical, level-headed, judicious way. The result was that (quoting a remark made to him by Mr. Hale) he was prepared to be-lieve within ten years the United States would have the best navy in the world-not the strongest navy, not a navy with the most ships, not a navy with the greatest variety of ships—but a navy with the most modern ships, with ships best adapted to the work

HALE ALSO COMPLIMENTARY. Mr. Hale said that the foundations for a good navy had been well laid under the administration of the Navy Department by Mr. Chandler, and paid Mr. Chandler a high compliment. He added that much of the success which had characterized the present administration of the Navy Department (to which he was glad to bear testimony) had been owing to the hearty holding up of the Secretary's hands by a majority of the Senwere to give the fruition of all that had been done before. Then the United States would have the very best navy in the world. An amendment was adopted appropriat-ing $50,000 for testing the Hurst guns, and then the bill was passed.

they would have to do.

SMALLS SPEAKS FOR RIMSELF

He Admits He Was Convicted of Bribery. but That Oughtn't to Count.

WASHINGTON, February 12 .- In the House to-day the Smalls-Eiliott contested election was again considered, the details on each side being confined to six hours, by agreement. After Mr. Crisp, Mr. O"Terrall. Mr. Kerr and Mr. Cooper had indulged in a spicy discussion of some length, Mr. Smalls was granted the floor to speak for himself.

He had supposed, he said, that the case was to be tried upon the evidence taken, but he found that he was placed upon trial for an act said to have been committed in 1873 in South Carolina. It was true he had been arrested in 1877, charged by the Demo-crats with receiving a bribe in 1873, and convicted. He was as innocent of that charge as the gentleman who now presided over the deliberations of the House (Mr. McCreary).

Reviewing the case, he commented on the fact that, though in South Carolina every Judge was a Democrat, every prosecuting officer was a Democrat, every constable was a Democrat, not a man had been brought to court for all this bulldozing and intimidation which had been charged. Let gentlemen on the other side examine the record, and if they came to the conclusion that he had not been honestly and squarely elected to this House, let them be honest in their convictions and vote against him. He would not himself take up the testimony because he was not a lawyer; and he thanked God sometimes that he was not, for now he could agree upon something. [Laughter.] No vote was reached on the subject to-

TWENTY MILLIONS DIFFERENCE

Berween the Reduction of the Mills Bill and That of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, February 12 .- The computations made by the Treasury Department as to the probable effect on the revenues of the tariff bill and the Senate amendment have been made public. They show that the House bill will reduce the collections from customs $50,350,345, and from internal revenue $17,610,234, or a total reduction of revenue of $57,960,579. The bill as amended by the Senate would reduce the customs collections $13,976,887 and the internal revenue receipts $33,905,780, or $47,under the Sepate bill 46.

In his letter transmitting the computations, Secretary Fairchild says that to avoid extra delay and labor the department made use of estimates formerly prepared, based on the importations for 1887, and adds:

Although made according to the plan and theory usually adopted, I recognize that these estimates are largely conjectural, and more or less unreliable and misleading. As a rule, they are based upon the assumption that if the Senate bill should become a law merchandise of like quantities and values would be imported as was imported to the proceed as was imported to the process. ported as was imported during the fiscal year 1887. This basis can only be accepted as relia-ble where changes in rates are not of such character as to necessarily cause increased im-

As Good a Time as Anv. WASHINGTON, February 12 .- Mr. Evarts to-day brought up the alleged outrages in Texas, but the matter was objected to by several Democratic Senators, who could see no use in occupying the time of the Senate in political debate at present, and thus forcing an extra session. Republican Senators thought in view of the Clayton assassi-nation in Arkansas, this was as good a time as any to prepare to prevent similar occur-

A PLEA FOR PROTECTION. The Kansas Legislature Asks Congress to See to the Southern States.
